

Father's Day Gifts for Dads Who Love the Outdoors

(StatePoint) Those who love to camp, hike and fish are always in need of equipment -- and Father's Day is the best time to gift outdoor-loving dads all the items that they need or want for their next big adventure.

Here are some top gift ideas for Dad:

Walkie Talkies

When one is in the great outdoors, he may not have mobile phone reception. But when straying from the camp site, keeping in touch becomes even more important. Two way radios may be an old technology, but they can keep campers connected to one another even when new technology can't.

Generator

Keep Dad powered up during camping trips, RV adventures and tailgating parties with an inverter generator. Inverter technology makes it quieter than traditional camping generators, perfect for the peace and tranquility of natural surroundings. For quieter power that's safe enough for sensitive electronics, powerful enough for most RV air conditioners, and portable, check out the P3000 PowerSmart Series Inverter Generator by Briggs & Stratton. Carrying handles and a telescoping handle make it easy to take where the fun is. Plus, the on-board StatStation display will keep Dad informed about power use, run time and maintenance reminders, so there are no surprises on the trip.

Also be sure to operate this product only outside far away from windows, doors and vents to reduce the risk of carbon monoxide gas from accumulating and potentially being drawn towards occupied spaces.

Cookout Comfort

Make cookouts and fireside chats more comfortable for your dad. Innovative camping chairs can now be as plush as a sofa, with all the portability of their traditional counterparts. From rocking camping chairs to double wide chairs to those with ergonomic armrests and canopies, you can help make relaxation time truly relaxing.

This Father's Day, consider beefing up Dad's collection of gear, just in time for camping season.
